Exchange Server Information

You will need to obtain the following information:
• Server name
• Domain name
• Whether an encrypted (SSL) connection is required
• Your username and password

Please Note: Step 1 provides a way to obtain the information needed. If you’re not able to obtain the information, please contact your IT administrator.
Step 1
Getting the right information

Step A – From your web browser, try to login to your Outlook Web Access (OWA).

In the above example, the server name is the part of the URL between https:// and /owa/. The 's' in https means SSL is enabled on the server (if SSL was disabled on the server, it would just be http.) The password you used to log into OWA is the password you will enter on your handheld. Therefore, the Exchange Server settings would be:

Server name – mail.companydomain.com
(can vary according to IT setup)
Use SSL- Yes
Password – The password you entered above
Getting the right information

Step B – From your computer keyboard, press Ctrl-Alt-Delete, and note the logon information.

Please Note: If the steps above do not work you will have to contact your IT administrator.

The domain and user name will appear under the Logon Information. It should appear as the following:
“You are logged in as DOMAIN NAME\USERNAME”
